A group of survivors of the atomic war tries to restart life in primordial conditions. Two spouses and one child, their son, escaped the atomic disaster live on the seashore leading a stunted and primitive existence. The man was contaminated by the atomic radiation that plagued his body and made him impotent. One day two more survivors arrive, identifying in the woman the possibility of repopulating the earth and creating a new civilization, but soon the ancient prejudices and the irrepressible instincts of destruction will rise.
